

Proposition 15
Refine Vertical Organization

- I A typewriter roll on the desk followed by a cluster of white plastic knives and forks on the desk.

- II Introducing the Triad notion of a cognitive integral (\int_{\dots}^{\dots}) to Turner's work with plasma as one medium and applying the notion of a partial cognitive differential to the Aristotelian theory of substratum, potency, and form of realization should complement Proposition 4 suggesting that a very remote intelligence is interested in the generalized dynamic of changes in cognitive capacity.^{1/2} The seasoned historian would be challenged to find a more explicit attempt to describe functional relationships required to maintain tension and equilibrium in a moral universe and, by reduction, Cartesian species.

- III A translucent Bon Ami image of the ELO sterling platter and an architect's scale on the desk validated theory and application.

- IV A brunette woman with a microphone on a headset appeared to have heard something she would rather not have: A hand and forearm reached down: A bicycle chain repair link: Fingers dripping wet very carefully turned a curled slip of a denim set connecting two larger parallel strips: A person blew a large hemispherical bubble of insecticide with a device he blew in. The bubble then settled on the grass, flat portion down. Another tried repeatedly to duplicate the process with no success
