

Proposition 18
Revise Approach to Large Scale Phenomena

- I A catcher's mitt with a new baseball in it on the lawn.

- II The thread of success in administering a response to a large scale phenomenon in any stage may be demonstrated to be contingent on finding analogous concepts in a broad range of species and incorporating this knowledge in anthropological transform theory. Given this, physical measurements can be conformed to the underlying fact base and used to determine dimensions required for a reaction roughly congruent with the phenomenon.

- III A cumulus cloud containing a machine screw anchor validated principle.

- IV A black body fountain pen nib in a black field: A pottery wheel: Asymptotically converging curves: A tablespoon of water taken from a salad bowl.
