

Proposition 16
Search for Historical Parallels

- I A cluster of Chianti bottles on my bureau.

- II The general public may find it informative should a seasoned historian present it with the results of the following experiment. Place the Baudrillard situation analysis in Magna Graecia. Move it forward through time to 08-02. Fix the instances in which it might be applied and describe the reaction. Taking gradual appreciation of Turner's depth, assess the groundswell of the alternatives. This then, will become an evaluation of proposition 10.

- III A cluster of Halloween candy corn kernels on the lawn validated principle and process.

- IV Some people in a darkened room turned an X-ray: The narrow stern of a racing hull: Two young men covered with dust: An unusual collection of people simultaneously engaged in declawing a giant lobster: Target practice with black rectangles and several other events in one room: A large highway oil truck started spewing its cargo on a bridge: One couple tossed their toddler over the rail in anticipation of a bridge collapse.
