

Proposition 33
Develop Coherent Status and Progress Indicators

- I A cluster of copper teakettles on the 3746 kitchen table:

- II Theory and purpose of the Triad indicator set, while differing from that of the generally accepted OECD indicators, would probably benefit should it be considered a derivation.<sup>1</sup> A first reading of the OECD concept of a sector specific decoupling shows promise for use in linking description of a society's progression through another dimensional set without completely disengaging from the substantial OECD organization, effort, and data base. Several promising concepts, including but not limited to Rod Nixon's position on governance and the SLEN then become specific examples of the Triad definition of the dynamic a system of governance must master.<sup>2</sup>

- III A suspension bridge above my notebook acknowledged potential.

- IV A small hand wheel turned slowly: Tried driving a car and was very uncomfortable.